Wallace Survives Shooting; Partly Paralyzed

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — George C. Wallace, shot down at an election-day rally, lay gravely wounded and partially paralyzed today on what was to have been the brightest day of his presidential campaign.

GEORGE C. WALLACE

The Alabama governor was hit several times by a gunman who pushed a pistol through a shopping-center crowd at Laurel, Md., Monday afternoon and fired point blank. A man identified by police as Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee, was wrestled to the ground by members of the crowd and arrested immediately.

After five hours of surgery, police and hospital spokesmen said Wallace's life was no longer in danger, but some paralysis was reported. One physician said the outlook for full recovery was not good. The governor's press secretary quoted doctors as saying the paralysis may be temporary, "but we will know more about this in the next 48 hours." He said Wallace will continue his campaign.

Physicians said Wallace came through the night in good spirits despite pain from his wounds. "He says it hurts, and he's feeling fine," Dr. Joseph Schanno said at a morning progress report. He said Wallace's condition remains critical.

Dr. Herman Maganzini, a heart specialist attending Wallace, said his heart is in excellent condition. "He's doing remarkably well considering the extent of his injuries," Maganzini said.

"I feel very optimistic about him," Wallace's wife, Cornelia, said after the surgery in Holy Cross Hospital. "As you know, his nature, he didn't earn the title of the 'Fighting Little George' for nothing, and I expect him to continue in the same vein."

Doctors said Wallace, 52, was hit by four or five bullets. Only two lodged in his body. One was removed from around his right shoulder. The second, which punctured the stomach and lodged on the lower part of the spine, was left in. Bullets also pierced Wallace's right forearm, grazed the back of his left shoulder blade and grazed his upper right shoulder.

Dr. Schanno said the bullet which came to rest on the spine may be removed in a later operation. It is the "blast effect" from this bullet that is blamed for Wallace's paralysis. Apparently it did not sever the spinal cord, and there is some chance that the damaged nerve tissue may heal itself, Schanno said. "I think the governor is going to make a recovery," Schanno said. "Now what disability he has as a result of his wounds is difficult to evaluate at this time. We're all very optimistic at this point."

Bremer was taken before U.S. Magistrate Clarence Goetz in Baltimore late Monday night and ordered held under $200,000 bond on charges of shooting Wallace and a Secret Service agent.

The agent, Nicholas Zarvos, underwent 7 1/2 hours of surgery for a bullet wound in the neck and was described as awake and "doing very satisfactorily" this morning.

A spokesman said doctors had wired Zarvos' teeth and repaired his trachea. He said the patient's face is badly swollen, but that he can speak, though it causes him pain to do so. Doctors recovered one bullet from Zarvos' jaw. Two others also were wounded, perhaps by some of the same bullets that hit Wallace.

Alabama State Police Capt. E. C. Dothard, who also was hit, was treated for a flesh wound on his right side and released from the hospital.

Dora Thompson, a Wallace campaign worker, suffered a leg wound and was listed in satisfactory condition in Holy Cross.

Billy Joe Camp, Wallace's press secretary, told newsmen today that the governor's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination will continue. Camp said Wallace himself made the decision which was relayed by Mrs. Wallace.

"He will be at the Democratic convention as a strong, vic-

General Fired For Misconduct

Air Force Chief Tells Of Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former top Air Force general in Vietnam was relieved of his post "because of irregularities in the conduct of his command responsibilities."

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, reportedly was personally embarrassed when Gen. John D. Lavelle told him U.S. pilots were obeying Joint Chiefs of Staff instructions on altitude and other flying conditions designed to save planes and pilots, and he learned later pilots were flying lower to hit their targets.

The Air Force announced Lavelle retired April 7 "for personal and health reasons." Monday, Ryan said Lavelle retired for health reasons, but had been relieved of command before that because of unspecified irregularities.

Lavelle had been in command of all Air Force activities in Vietnam since last July. He was succeeded by Gen. John W. Vogt Jr., who had been announced as scheduled for a top command in Europe.

Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., said his House Armed Services Committee will investigate Lavelle's command of the 7th Air Force in Vietnam at the request of Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., a committee member.

Pike, in a prepared statement, referred to the situation as "a scandal."

Bomb Blast In Ireland Injures 17

BELFAST (AP) — An explosion wrecked a Protestant bar in Belfast late Monday night, injuring 17 persons and sending Protestant youths on a rampage.

It was the second bar bombed in three days. A Roman Catholic tavern was demolished Saturday, touching off a 36-hour Catholic-Protestant battle in which nine persons were killed and more than 70 wounded.

A 50-pound bomb in a parked car shattered the Bluebell Tavern in Sandy Row, a Protestant district in East Belfast. Three girls, 7, 10, and 13 years old, were among the casualties.

Protestant youths threw up barricades around the street, while others charged into a nearby business district, hurling rocks at offices and smashing in windows with clubs.

Police said "older and wiser heads" finally persuaded the youths to return home, and protestant residents removed the barricades.

The two bar bombings and the reaction that followed heightened fears of civil war between the Protestant majority and the Catholic minority. For many months the Protestants have held back, leaving to the British army and the police the task of combatting the Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army. But since the British government supplanted the Protestant provincial government and made some concessions to the Catholics, Protestant militancy has been increasing.

Ohio Department Of Health Places Freeze On Sewer Taps In Circleville

The Ohio Department of Health has imposed a freeze on further sewer connections within the city of Circleville, effective June 9.

Charles Taylor, the city's director of public utilities, was informed of the freeze in a letter from John W. Cashman, M.D., chairman of the Water Pollution Control Board, that was dated May 11.

Connally Quits Treasury Post; Shultz Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon made a surprise personal announcement today that Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally—"a tower of strength for the President"—is resigning.

Nixon told newsmen at the White House that he will nominate George P. Shultz, former secretary of Labor and currently director of the Office of Management and Budget, to succeed Connally.

To take over from Shultz at OMB, Nixon will name the agency's deputy director, Caspar Weinberger.

Connally said politics didn't figure in his decision to leave the Cabinet after 18 months.

Asked what role he might play in the fall election campaign, he replied, "I don't know."

He has been the only Democrat in President Nixon's Cabinet.

Although Connally declared that "I have no political aspirations and no particular ambitions," he declined to rule out the possibility that he might answer the call should Nixon ask him to be his vice presidential running mate this year.

The departing Treasury chief said he didn't think such an offer would be forthcoming and asserted, "I don't want to engage in that type of speculation."

After a moment's pause, Connally added: "I'm not going to withdraw from the human race or from the political life of my nation."

Connally served as secretary of the Navy under President John F. Kennedy, resigning to run for the governorship of Texas. While serving as governor he was wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, Nov. 22, 1963.

House Panel Takes Up State Parochial Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Controversial legislation drafted to skirt recent federal court rulings banning state aid to non-public schools got its first hearing in an Ohio House committee Monday night, but not many were around to listen.

The committee meeting, hastily called in advance of today's opening of this week's House session, attracted less than a quorum of the members of the Education, Health, and Welfare

Committee, forcing its chairman, Rep. Norman Murdock, R-70 Cincinnati, to convene the hearing as a "subcommittee" to take testimony on the measure.

Added to the lack of advance notice of the hearing was the feeling among many legislators that the bill, authored by Murdock, is unconstitutional anyway.

The bill is a response to a pair of federal court rulings over the past year.

One ruling declared state aid to parochial schools a violation of the separation of church and state provisions of the U.S. Constitution.

The second, handed down earlier this year, said tuition rebates to parents of non-public school students, 95 per cent of whom go to parochial schools, was just as unconstitutional.

"The fact that the bill that is before you is an immediate response to the court opinion in no way shows a lack of responsibility on the part of the legislature," Murdock asserted to those who did show up for the hearing.

However, Murdock assured them, "We are always looking for ways to improve a bill," and added that his measure would get the same careful treatment.

The bill, itself, calls for tax credits against the state income tax for non-public school parents.

Gov. John Gilligan has refused to either endorse or oppose the measure.

But, Gilligan education advisor Robert Cecil admits, though the measure isn't perfect, it's better than anything else tried so far.

Cecil has indicated the Democratic legislative lead-

U.S. Raids Stepped Up Against North

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers wrecked North Vietnam's air defense headquarters on the southern edge of Hanoi and cut the main pipeline feeding tanks and supply trucks on the northern front in South Vietnam, the U.S. Command announced today.

Intelligence reports have said Russian technicians and advisers were known to be working in the headquarters, but there was no immediate comment on this from the command.

A six-page communique reporting the assessment of damage done by nearly 2,000 strikes in North Vietnam during the past week said:

"The North Vietnamese Air Defense Headquarters at Bach Mai air field, south of Hanoi, was struck by U.S. Air Force F4s, destroying several structures."

Bach Mai is three miles south of Hanoi.

The command also disclosed that air strikes against North Vietnam have been stepped up to an average of 250 per day in the campaign ordered by President Nixon a week ago to choke off supply routes to the south.

The command had announced earlier that both the northwest and northeast rail lines between Hanoi and China had been cut, and the 7th Air Force reported Sunday that its bombers had destroyed the "Dragon's Jaw" bridge at Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi, a key link in North Vietnam's supply network.

But spokesmen said that the effects of the aerial campaign on the enemy offensive in the south would not be known for at least 30 days. They estimated that the North Vietnamese had a month's supply of fuel close at hand for their tanks and vehicles in the south.

Fighting in the 48-day-old North Vietnamese offensive slowed down, but the reason was not immediately clear. One U.S. military source said the enemy may have pulled back to consolidate its forces, but "even the most ardent air power advocate would not attribute this lull to the bombing."

Alf Landon Backs Nixon War Moves

ATCHISON, Kan. (AP) — President Nixon's blockade of North Vietnamese ports is the United States first "strategic move in this long and frustrating Vietnam war," says Alf. M. Landon, former Kansas governor and 1936 Republican presidential nominee.

"What we have been doing up to now is interdicting supply lines by hitting trucks and other means of moving supplies over the Ho Chi Minh Trail," Landon told the graduating class at Mount St. Scholastica Academy in commencement exercises Sunday.

Shooting Suspect Loner; Puzzled Family Members

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Arthur H. Bremer, the onetime photography student charged with shooting Democratic presidential candidate George C. Wallace, is described as a quiet but confident loner.

The picture drawn by relatives, friends and acquaintances of the man who is accused of gunning down Wallace and three others at a Maryland shopping center Monday is that of a youth who kept his opinions to himself, developed few friendships and was something of a puzzle even to his family.

Bremer, 21, is being held in lieu of $200,000 bond in Maryland, under federal charges of assaulting a candidate for public office and a federal officer and under state charges of assault with intent to kill.

Although acquaintances, including classmates in his college photography class, said they were not aware of political interests or activity on the part of the blonde young man with close-cropped hair, effects found in his Milwaukee apartment Monday night indicated otherwise.

Among the items in the West Side apartment were a Confederate flag and newspaper clippings about Wallace's campaign, some dating to 1968 when Wallace staged a third-party effort.

"He must have been for George Wallace, because he had a Wallace sticker across the door," said Stephen Wasche, 17, a neighbor in the apartment house.

Bremer moved into the apartment with his family's South Side home last fall. Neighbors said he dropped from sight about a month ago.

Bremer's truck driver father, William, 58, said his son had "never mentioned anything political," but he said he had learned that his son was a "dual-paying member of the 12th Ward Democratic unit."

Notebooks found in the apartment included one with the words "Cheer up, Oswald" in large print. Then, in smaller print, were the words "white collar conservative ... middle class Republican ... suburbanite robot."

Nation's Leaders Deplore Shooting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Leaders across the political spectrum have reacted with shock, outrage and dismay at the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and deplored the trend of political violence in the nation.

Many officials recalled the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy upon learning of the shooting at a Laurel, Md., shopping center on Monday.

Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, the leading contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination that Wallace was seeking, canceled their scheduled campaign appearances.

President Nixon called Mrs. Wallace at her husband's bedside to offer his hope and prayers for the wounded candidate's recovery.

He called the shooting a "senseless and tragic incident" and said the nation has suffered "more than enough all-ready from the intrusion of violence into its political process."

McGovern said, "We can only hope and pray for the speedy recovery of Gov. Wallace and we can only say a prayer for our country."

"If we've gotten to the point in this country where a public figure can't speak out on the issues of the day and seek the presidency without being shot, then I tremble the future of our nation," he said.

Humphrey, who was campaigning in Maryland when he learned of the shooting, rushed to the hospital and spent more than an hour with Wallace's wife while the governor was in surgery.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, brother of John and Robert said, "My heart and prayers go out to Gov. Wallace and to members of his grief-stricken family. Once again, democracy in America has been scarred by senseless and unforgivable violence. I am saddened beyond measure that tragedy has again stained and darkened the process we use to select our political leaders."

Urge Local Action Against Accidents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio High Safety Director Eugene P. O'Grady said he is asking local community leaders to join the fight against traffic accidents.

"I want these front line commanders to know the Ohio Department of Highway Safety is ready, willing and able to place informational and technical ammunition into their hands for firing at will," O'Grady said.

Ohio Department Of Health Places Freeze On Sewer Taps In Circleville

The Ohio Department of Health has imposed a freeze on further sewer connections within the city of Circleville, effective June 9.

Charles Taylor, the city's director of public utilities, was informed of the freeze in a letter from John W. Cashman, M.D., chairman of the Water Pollution Control Board, that was dated May 11.

Taylor said today the city plans to appeal the ruling of the Ohio Department of Health, even though he had suggested at the last City Council meeting that a building freeze should be considered in the city until a study of the entire sewerage system could be completed. The state's action negates any further action in this direction by the city.

Taylor said that his department will continue to issue permits for sewer taps until June 9. But the connections to the city sewer must be completed by that date. The connections will not be allowed after June 9 even if the permit has been issued, he emphasized.

ONE of the reasons the freeze has been ordered by the state is the city has not followed the implementation schedule for construction of a new sewerage treatment plant established by the Water Pollution Control Board. This schedule designated the report and general plan for the plant was to have been completed by Jan. 1, 1969, detailed plans completed by July 1, 1970, and construction started by Jan. 1, 1972.

Taylor laid part of the delay directly on the State Department of Health.

As of December, 1968, preliminary planning has been approved by the state. Then June 2, 1969 it was suggested by the state that city and local industry (Container Corporation of America) consider joint treatment facilities. The city followed the suggestion and October, 1969, submitted a report that was questioned by the state on the basis the plant would be operating at capacity when completed. Another report was made June, 1970. It too was questioned by the state. A revised report submitted August, 1970, was also questioned. Finally in November, 1970, a report for a joint treatment plant was approved by the Ohio Department of Health.

However, the city and Container Corporation could not agree on cost allocation of construction of the plant, so the plan was scrapped and the city started all over again.

Since January, 1971, the city has had general plans approved, has acquired the site for construction of the plant and has had that site approved by the state.

Taylor said that hopefully detailed plans will be completed by September. He noted there is a possibility that earthwork involved in construction may be started yet this summer and actual construction of the plant begun in early 1973.

HE said the city planned to base its appeal on the fact it was progressing as rapidly as possible under the conditions.

Other items in the report concerned operation of the present plant by the city. Taylor said the city either has already or is taking steps to comply with these directives where possible.

Here is the main body of the letter from Cashman:

1. That the City of Circleville hereafter in this document will be referred to as "this entity."
2. The Water Pollution Control Board, pursuant to Section 6111.03 (H), Revised Code, previously ordered this entity

Angela Davis Prosecution Rests; Acquittal Bid Set

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The prosecution has ended its murder-kidnap-conspiracy case against Angela Davis with details of the black militant's love for convict-author George Jackson. The defense says it will ask today for her acquittal.

Prosecutor Albert Harris Jr. completed the state's case by reading jurors a heavily edited version of Miss Davis' love diary. In it, the former UCLA philosophy instructor talks of marriage vows and refers to herself as Jackson's "lifelong wife."

The trial now focuses on the defense—and defense attorney Leo A. Branton said the first order of business today would be to ask Superior Court Judge Richard E. Aronson for a directed verdict of acquittal on the ground of insufficient evidence.

The prosecution case took seven weeks and involved 95 witnesses and more than 200 pieces of evidence. In much of that time, Harris had attempted to read jurors the complete 18-page diary.

He said it was crucial to show that Miss Davis had an uncontrolled passion and willingness to kill, if necessary, to free Jackson from San Quentin Prison.

The state contends passionate love was Miss Davis' motive for furnishing four guns and helping plan an escape attempt from the Marin County Civic Center on Aug. 7, 1970.

In the state's theory, a judge and four other hostages were to be traded for Jackson. Instead, the escape went awry and ended in shooting and the death of the judge, two convicts and an accomplice.

Arsonson whittled the diary down to 2 1/2 pages which focused almost entirely on Miss Davis' love for Jackson—one of the three Soledad Prison inmates then awaiting trial on charges of murdering a guard.

Roundtown

NICHOLAS Drive between Holiday Lane and Northridge Road will be closed Wednesday to permit installation of a sewer to the new subdivision on the east side of Nicholas Drive it was announced today by Atwood Jones, director of public service, Circleville.

THERE is a revival of easy money rackets in Pickaway County, according to Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, who reported an episode yesterday.

House painters called on a Muhlenberg Township homeowner Monday, barked for a price and painted her roof.

After they finished the job and collected their money, a rain storm struck the area and washed the paint into her yard. The men had neglected to say they were using water-base paint.

Radcliff ordered the men from the county, but said there appears to be several more units of the company still operating in the county.

He advised persons unsure of any solicitors to call his office.

House Panel Takes Up State Parochial Aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Controversial legislation drafted to skirt recent federal court rulings banning state aid to non-public schools got its first hearing in an Ohio House committee Monday night, but not many were around to listen.

The committee meeting, hastily called in advance of today's opening of this week's House session, attracted less than a quorum of the members of the Education, Health, and Welfare

Committee, forcing its chairman, Rep. Norman Murdock, R-70 Cincinnati, to convene the hearing as a "subcommittee" to take testimony on the measure.

Added to the lack of advance notice of the hearing was the feeling among many legislators that the bill, authored by Murdock, is unconstitutional anyway.

The bill is a response to a pair of federal court rulings over the past year. One ruling declared state aid to parochial schools a violation of the separation of church and state provisions of the U.S. Constitution.

The second, handed down earlier this year, said tuition rebates to parents of non-public school students, 95 per cent of whom go to parochial schools, was just as unconstitutional.

"The fact that the bill that is before you is an immediate response to the court opinion in no way shows a lack of responsibility on the part of the legislature," Murdock asserted to those who did show up for the hearing.

However, Murdock assured them, "We are always looking for ways to improve a bill," and added that his measure would get the same careful treatment.

The bill, itself, calls for tax credits against the state income tax for non-public school parents.

Gov. John Gilligan has refused to either endorse or oppose the measure.

But, Gilligan education advisor Robert Cecilie admits, though the measure isn't perfect, it's better than anything else tried so far.

Cecilie has indicated the Democratic legislative lead-

Near Head-On Crash Injures Warren Girl

A 20-year-old Miami University student suffered minor injuries 12:20 p.m. Sunday when an oncoming driver forced her car off Route 56, just east of Jackson Rd.

Martha Berexny, 20, Warren, was referred to a doctor for treatment of an arm injury. Two other passengers in her car, Phillip Fuchs, 19, Oxford, and Marcy Morgan, 20, Oxford, were not injured.

Sheriff's Deputy Bob Hoover charged the other driver, Leonard G. Roop, 55, Mt. Sterling, with violation of section A of the left of center code — passing without a clear view.

Hoover said Roop was driving east on Route 56 and attempted to pass another car in his lane when Miss Berexny's small car crested a hill and was heading straight into his car.

However, she veered sharply to the right and crashed through a fence, inflicting heavy damage to her car.

Bishop told police he had lost his way and was concerned because the water "seemed choppy."

Laird Goes To Europe For Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird left today for Europe to explain to America's NATO allies what he called President Nixon's "bold decision for peace in Indochina."

"I believe the majority of the defense ministers will understand this most generous offer for peace," Laird told newsmen at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland.

He was referring to the President's offer last week to withdraw all U.S. troops from Vietnam four months after the North agrees to return all American prisoners and an internationally supervised ceasefire throughout Indochina.

In the meantime, the United States has sealed North Vietnam's harbors with mines and is bombing that country's transportation system to cut off the flow of military supplies.

Laird noted that since the mines were seeded more than a week ago no ships have crossed the barrier.

He defended use of the mines, describing them as passive weapons which "do not seek out ships, but when a ship seeks out a mine there will be an explosion."

Wallace Suspect Probed Earlier

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Kalamazoo police said today the man held in Maryland in the wounding Monday of Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was questioned here Saturday on "a suspicious person" report four hours before Wallace spoke at a Kalamazoo rally.

The questioning followed what police said was an anonymous telephone call that "a suspicious man" had been sitting in a car "most of the day" in a parking lot across from the National Guard Armory where the Wallace rally was to be held at 8 p.m.

Patrolman Edward Gooding, who investigated about 4 p.m., said the man identified himself as Arthur H. Bremer and said he was born Aug. 21, 1950.

2. Submit regular monthly operating reports and annual summaries in accordance with requirements of the Ohio Department of Health.

3. 7. Immediately report to the Division of Engineering (by telephone or telegram) the occurrence and cause of any discharge of untreated or partially treated wastewaters to waters of the state as a result of sewer or other pipeline breaks, equipment malfunctions or failures, operator error, accidents, process interruptions, power failures, etc. Include in the immediate report the remedial steps being taken and the names of the other agencies who have been notified. Confirm the immediate report in writing within one week of the occurrence, and report permanent measures taken to prevent recurrence.

Stock List Edges Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices edged higher today, although brokers said the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was keeping price gains limited.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up .08 to 942.28.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by 3 to 2.

Analysts said the shooting of Wallace added a note of uncertainty to the market. Concern over Vietnam also was a factor, which kept gains fairly restrained, they said.

Also in the news background was a Commerce Department report that the nation's balance of payments deficit in the first quarter showed a marked improvement but remained high.

Although the market has advanced for the past four sessions, sending the Dow up some 17 points, many investors still were uncertain whether a rally was really underway brokers said.

Uniform Tax Bill Faces Senate Vote

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A controversial bill aimed at delaying for at least six years an Ohio Supreme Court order that all real property be appraised at a uniform rate for tax purposes headed for a floor vote in the Ohio Senate today.

Sponsored by Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7, Cincinnati, the bill would require all county auditors to appraise property at 100 per cent of true value and assess it for tax purposes at 35 per cent at the county's next reappraisal.

Reappraisals are required by law every six years, but the appraisals are staggered from county to county. In Franklin County, for example, reappraisal occurred in 1969 and is not scheduled again until 1975.

The bill grows out of the 1962 "Park Investment Case," in which a Cleveland firm contended its property was not appraised at the same rate as its neighbors in violation of the Ohio Constitution.

The State Supreme Court in two decisions and several other legal skirmishes, agreed. In its final order last June, the court ordered equal and uniform appraisals.

The State Board of Tax Appeals, under court order, set the uniform rate at 35 per cent. Legislators have been under pressure since to enact legislation to soften the impact of the ruling.

Some Cancer To Be Conquered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some forms of cancer will be cured within 10 years, says Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, special consultant to President Nixon on health affairs.

At a news conference Monday preceding the dedication of a hospital, Egeberg said some types of cancer "will have to wait 20, 30 or 40 years" to be solved.

"Cancer is not a disease but a host of diseases," he said. "Within a decade we'll have a cure for some cancers we don't have now but there will still be work to be done."

Wallace Expected To Sweep Maryland, Michigan Votes

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF AP Political Writer

Gov. George C. Wallace, shot and critically wounded on the eve of what looms as his biggest 1972 political triumph, is favored to sweep Democratic presidential primaries today in Michigan and Maryland, possibly boosted by a substantial sympathy vote.

Michigan will divide 132 delegates to the Democratic National Convention proportionately according to the presidential preference voting. In Maryland, 53 votes will be decided on the basis of statewide and congressional district results.

Even before a gunman shot Wallace as he campaigned Monday in the Washington suburb of Laurel, Md. he had been favored to win in both states, and after the shooting an aide said the governor would continue his drive for the presidency.

His top rivals are Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, considered the leading candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The incident may create "a large sentiment to vote for Wallace," president Tom Turner of the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO, a Humphrey backer, predicted.

McGovern and Humphrey stopped active presidential campaigning, halted television and radio commercials and returned to Washington.

A Wallace television appeal went on as scheduled in Michigan, however, and a Wallace campaign worker in the Detroit suburb of Lincoln Park said, "Nothing's changed. We're still campaigning, and we're still going to carry Michigan."

BGSU Increases

Tuition Fees

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — It will be much more expensive for out-of-state students to attend Bowling Green State University next year.

The school announced Monday it was raising its non-resident student fees to $381 per quarter, the same amount the state gives colleges and universities it supports for each Ohio resident registered.

The fee hike will make Bowling Green the most expensive state school in Ohio for an out-of-state resident to attend.

Mr. Corne, 114 Rosewood Ave., notified city police someone apparently used a pellet gun to shoot a hole in a storm window at his residence Monday night.

Wallace . . .

Bremer was charged by federal authorities with violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act by assaulting a candidate for an elective office. He was charged also with assault on a federal officer, Zarvos.

Fatal assault on a federal officer carries a possible death penalty. Penalty under the civil-rights-act violation could be life imprisonment if the victim dies; otherwise maximum penalty is 10 years and $10,000 fine.

Maryland authorities charged Bremer with four counts of assault with intent to kill. FBI agents said he is being held in Baltimore County jail in Towson, Md.

Wallace had just finished a 33-minute speech at the shopping center and stepped from behind his bulletproof-steel lectern to shake hands with well-wishers in a supermarket parking lot.

Emmett W. Eaton, a campaign aide, said a man in the crowd called Wallace back: "Hey, George, ain't you going to shake my hand?"

"George turned and walked toward him and that's when he was shot," Eaton said.

Witnesses said the assailant was wearing Wallace buttons and had been seen at other Wallace rallies. The crowd jumped for him spontaneously. "He was roughed up pretty bad," one man said later.

Maryland State Atty. Arthur A. Marshall said Bremer was taken to a hospital emergency room with laceration on the back of his head but showed no other wounds. Bremer received two hours of X-ray tests and physical and neurological examinations.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said the Secret Service had recovered a .38-caliber snub-nosed revolver Monday which U.S. Atty. George Beall said was purchased by Bremer in Milwaukee last Jan. 13.

At his appearance before Goetz, Bremer declined a court-appointed attorney and said he wanted to be represented by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Beall recommended the $200,000 bond because of "the nature and circumstances of the charges. The weight of the evidence against him is very strong."

A preliminary hearing was set for 10 a.m. May 24.

Laird Goes To Europe For Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird left today for Europe to explain to America's NATO allies what he called President Nixon's "bold decision for peace in Indochina."

"I believe the majority of the defense ministers will understand this most generous offer for peace," Laird told newsmen at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland.

He was referring to the President's offer last week to withdraw all U.S. troops from Vietnam four months after the North agrees to return all American prisoners and an internationally supervised ceasefire throughout Indochina.

In the meantime, the United States has sealed North Vietnam's harbors with mines and is bombing that country's transportation system to cut off the flow of military supplies.

Laird noted that since the mines were seeded more than a week ago no ships have crossed the barrier.

He defended use of the mines, describing them as passive weapons which "do not seek out ships, but when a ship seeks out a mine there will be an explosion."

Wallace Suspect Probed Earlier

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Kalamazoo police said today the man held in Maryland in the wounding Monday of Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama was questioned here Saturday on "a suspicious person" report four hours before Wallace spoke at a Kalamazoo rally.

The questioning followed what police said was an anonymous telephone call that "a suspicious man" had been sitting in a car "most of the day" in a parking lot across from the National Guard armory where the Wallace rally was to be held at 8 p.m.

Patrolman Edward Gooding, who investigated about 4 p.m., said the man identified himself as Arthur H. Bremer and said he was born Aug. 21, 1950.

2. Submit regular monthly operating reports and annual summaries in accordance with requirements of the Ohio Department of Health.

3. Submit for approval by the Ohio Department of Health by September 1, 1972, detail plans and specifications for proposed secondary wastewater treatment, including nutrient removal facilities substantially in accordance with approved general plan and as required to meet applicable water quality standards.

4. Initiate construction by March 1, 1973, of secondary wastewater treatment, including nutrient removal facilities in accordance with approved detail plans.

5. Immediately, after Containment Corporation of America's effluent does not discharge to the Circleville sewage treatment plant, start chlorinating plant effluent, and maintain a chlorine residual of 0.5 mg/l.

6. Prohibit (a) directly or indirectly allowing, permitting, or accepting any additional pollution to be discharged into the waters of the state resulting from any new construction not completed, connected, or now discharging and (b) directly or indirectly allowing, permitting, or accepting additional connections to or extensions of its sewerage system, including connections by persons who hold permits to connect issued prior to the date of this order, when such connections or extensions would result in an increase of the polluting properties of the effluent from such system when discharged into any waters of the state.

7. Immediately report to the Division of Engineering (by telephone or telegram) the occurrence and cause of any discharge of untreated or partially treated wastewaters to waters of the state as a result of sewer or other pipeline breaks, equipment malfunctions or failures, operator error, accidents, process interruptions, power failures, etc. Include in the immediate report the remedial steps being taken and the names of the other agencies who have been notified. Confirm the immediate report in writing within one week of the occurrence, and report permanent measures taken to prevent recurrence.

Stock List Edges Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices edged higher today, although brokers said the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace was keeping price gains limited.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was up .08 to 942.28.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by 3 to 2.

Analysts said the shooting of Wallace added a note of uncertainty to the market. Concern over Vietnam also was a factor, which kept gains fairly restrained, they said.

Also in the news background was a Commerce Department report that the nation's balance of payments deficit in the first quarter showed a marked improvement but remained high.

Although the market has advanced for the past four sessions, sending the Dow up some 17 points, many investors still were uncertain whether a rally was really underway brokers said.

Uniform Tax Bill Faces Senate Vote

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A controversial bill aimed at delaying for at least six years an Ohio Supreme Court order that all real property be appraised at a uniform rate for tax purposes headed for a floor vote in the Ohio Senate today.

Sponsored by Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7, Cincinnati, the bill would require all county auditors to appraise property at 100 per cent of true value and assess it for tax purposes at 35 per cent of the county's next reappraisal.

Reappraisals are required by law every six years, but the appraisals are staggered from county to county. In Franklin County, for example, reappraisal occurred in 1969 and is not scheduled again until 1975.

The bill grows out of the 1962 "Park Investment Case," in which a Cleveland firm contended its property was not appraised at the same rate as its neighbors in violation of the Ohio Constitution.

The State Supreme Court in two decisions and several other legal skirmishes, agreed. In its final order last June, the court ordered equal and uniform appraisals.

The State Board of Tax Appeals, under court order, set the uniform rate at 35 per cent. Legislators have been under pressure since to enact legislation to soften the impact of the ruling.

Some Cancer To Be Conquered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some forms of cancer will be cured within 10 years, says Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, special consultant to President Nixon on health affairs.

At a news conference Monday preceding the dedication of a hospital, Egeberg said some types of cancer "will have to wait 20, 30 or 40 years" to be solved.

"Cancer is not a disease but a host of diseases," he said. "Within a decade we'll have a cure for some cancers we don't have now but there still will be work to be done."

Vernon E. Woodruff, 19, Chillicothe, was arraigned in Municipal Court Monday on petit larceny charges after he was caught stealing a stereo tape player 5:45 a.m. Monday. Joseph Speakman, Route 1 Kingston, told sheriff's deputies he heard a noise and spotted two people in his yard Monday morning.

He ordered them to stop, but when they fled he fired a shot gun blast in their direction. Woodruff stopped running, but the other man escaped.

He was found guilty of the charge in court Monday and fined $50 and costs. Judge Sterling Lamb also levied a 60 day jail term at Woodruff, but suspended it in favor of a year's probation.

He was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and lost his driving rights for an additional 6 months for eluding a police officer.

Wallace Expected To Sweep Maryland, Michigan Votes

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF AP Political Writer

Gov. George C. Wallace, shot and critically wounded on the eve of what looms as his biggest 1972 political triumph, is favored to sweep Democratic presidential primaries today in Michigan and Maryland, possibly boosted by a substantial sympathy vote.

Michigan will divide 132 delegates to the Democratic National Convention proportionately according to the presidential preference voting. In Maryland, 53 votes will be decided on the basis of statewide and congressional district results.

Even before a gunman shot Wallace as he campaigned Monday in the Washington suburb of Laurel, Md. he had been favored to win in both states, and after the shooting an aide said the governor would continue his drive for the presidency.

His top rivals are Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey, considered the leading candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The incident may create "a large sentiment to vote for Wallace," president Tom Turner of the Metropolitan Detroit AFL-CIO, a Humphrey backer, predicted.

McGovern and Humphrey stopped active presidential campaigning, halted television and radio commercials and returned to Washington.

A Wallace television appeal went on as scheduled in Michigan, however, and a Wallace campaign worker in the Detroit suburb of Lincoln Park said, "Nothing's changed. We're still campaigning, and we're still going to carry Michigan."

Polls were scheduled to open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. EDT in Maryland, where only Democrats can cast votes in the Democratic primary.

In Michigan, which is holding its first presidential primary, polls were to open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. EDT. Voters could decide in the booth whether to vote in the Democratic or Republican primaries.

Backers of U.S. Sens. George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey, the leading contenders in the primary, asked for the canvass.

Board members said Monday that early reports indicated there was less than one-third of one per cent error.

Instead of checking in Wards 1, 2 and 3, the election board canvassed Ward 1 and then switched to Ward 27. Precinct Q, it got halfway through Ward 17 before quitting Monday afternoon and was to resume the canvass there today, then check Ward II ballots.

The changes were made at the request of McGovern backers after little change was noted in checking Ward 1 ballots.

Republican board member Saul Stillman said Humphrey backers were satisfied with the canvass and wouldn't care if it were stopped.

BGSU Increases Tuition Fees

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — It will be much more expensive for out-of-state students to attend Bowling Green State University next year.

The school announced Monday it was raising its non-resident student fees to $381 per quarter, the same amount the state gives colleges and universities it supports for each Ohio resident registered.

The fee hike will make Bowling Green the most expensive state school in Ohio for an out-of-state resident to attend.

Bremer was charged by federal authorities with violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act by assaulting a candidate for an elective office. He was charged also with assault on a federal officer, Zarvos.

Fatal assault on a federal officer carries a possible death penalty. Penalty under the civil-rights act violation could be life imprisonment if the victim dies; otherwise maximum penalty is 10 years and $10,000 fine.

Maryland authorities charged Bremer with four counts of assault with intent to kill. FBI agents said he is being held in Baltimore County jail in Towson, Md.

Wallace had just finished a 38-minute speech at the shopping center and stepped from behind his bulletproof-steel lectern to shake hands with well-wishers in a supermarket parking lot.

Emmett W. Eaton, a campaign aide, said a man in the crowd called Wallace back: "Hey, George, ain't you going to shake my hand?"

"George turned and walked toward him and that's when he was shot," Eaton said.

Witnesses said the assailant was wearing Wallace buttons and had been seen at other Wallace rallies. The crowd jumped for him spontaneously. "He was roughed up pretty bad," one man said later.

Maryland State Atty. Arthur A. Marshall said Bremer was taken to a hospital emergency room with laceration on the back of his head but showed no other wounds. Bremer received two hours of X-ray tests and physical and neurological examinations.

A Justice Department spokesman in Washington said the Secret Service had recovered a .38-caliber snub-nosed revolver Monday which U.S. Atty. George Beall said was purchased by Bremer in Milwaukee last Jan. 13.

Coins For Machines

Jingle, jingle, the coins are coming back. The jingle in the pocket has a duller tone because of the metals used in coinage today, but the supply turned out by the U.S. Mint finally is beginning to catch up with the demand.

That is particularly true of the Kennedy half dollar, which for years had the unique distinction of being the scarcest contemporary coin ever turned out by the hundreds of millions. Part of the problem was the rising price of silver, which placed a premium value on the intrinsic worth of the older part-silver coins.

Most of those coins long ago were culled from circulation. Coins now being minted contain no silver. The 300 million Kennedy halves minted last year have overcome the hoarders' appetite in most places.

The Eisenhower dollar, also with no silver content and 15 per cent lighter in weight than the older silver dollars, has not achieved a balance between supply and demand. They are particularly sought in the Western states.

A sure sign of public acceptance of the coins as mediums of exchange and not simply conversation pieces is the vending machine business. Machines with 50 cents slots which were retired from service because of unavailability of the coins are being recalled to use. Change machines used in banks and other businesses are being fitted with half dollar columns.

Automatic dry cleaning machines which will accept the dollar coins are due to appear later this year. At the same time machines which accept the larger coins are making a reappearance, notice what is happening to those which used to operate on the smallest denominations.

Inflation is taking its toll at that end of the scale.

It's Official

In its attempt to evaluate the Freedom of information act, which was passed five years ago to make more government information available to the public, the House Freedom of Information subcommittee has produced some surprising findings.

The subcommittee found 55,000 individuals in the federal government with the power to classify documents "confidential," the lowest official designation to prohibit disclosure. Of these, 18,000 also are empowered to classify documents "secret." More than 3,000 persons are authorized to wield the "top secret" stamp, the most restrictive classification.

But beyond these categories the subcommittee found a substructure of censors using many other designations, all designed to hide official papers from public scrutiny. In all, the panel found 63 restrictive designations which "hundreds of thousands of additional government bureaucrats stamp on tons of government information."

The most popular of the terms used is "Official Use." That would seem to cover about everything. Who ever heard of a government file for unofficial use?

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Whatever happened to ordinary lumbago? It seems that everyone I know talks about their "slipped disc."

Is this a newfangled term for an old condition?

Dear Mr. E.:

Lumbago and low-back pain may have an undistinguished identity. But they are not in competition with the "aristocrat" of back diseases, the slipped disc.

The diagnosis of the slipped disc is not a casual one, especially since the symptoms are so painful and incapacitating.

There are 33 bones, or vertebrae, that run from the neck to the coccyx, or tail bone. Between each of these bones in the spinal column there is a disc made up of solid, yet elastic, tissue.

These discs act as protective shock absorbers to cushion pressure or injury to the spine. They make it possible for complex body movements to be made without injuring the bony edges of the spinal column.

Sometimes, due to injury, long-standing poor posture, a sudden strain or lifting a heavy weight, a disc can be pushed out of its normal position, and protrude between the vertebrae. This condition is known as a "slipped" or "herniated" disc.

Delicate nerves leading out of the spinal column may be pressured by the slipped disc, causing severe radiating pain to the back or the legs.

There is no guesswork about this condition. The diagnosis is made by a series of complicated studies, by a bone specialist and by a neurologist.

A special type of X-ray study, a myelogram, is used to pinpoint the exact area where a slipped disc is suspected.

The symptoms of low-back pain and lumbago, sciatica, and slipped disc may closely resemble one another.

For this reason, before any type of manipulations or massage is started, the exact underlying cause for these symptoms must be established by the doctor.

Manipulation without the comprehension of the real reason for back pain may convert a simple problem into a complicated one.

Surgery for a slipped disc is a decision arrived at only after a long period of conservative treatment with traction, bed rest, and medicines.

To Candidates

By JEFFERY HART

I am not applying for a job, since I find teaching at Dartmouth fully satisfying. Nevertheless, as one who has written a good many political speeches for winning candidates during the last four years, I would like to point out that the George McGovern problem is eminently soluble. It would be a speech writer's joy.

Analytically, the fundamental weakness of the McGovern candidacy as a national proposition is that he cannot a) maintain the positions that attract his zealous supporters, and b) broaden his appeal sufficiently to be a viable national candidate. But the strength of the McGovern operation resides in the cadres who are attracted to him because of his radical positions.

I would therefore, as a speech writer, exploit the contradictions in the McGovern operation by stressing his stand on amnesty for draft-dodgers, drastically reducing the penalty for pot so as to guarantee its widespread use, and abortion on demand.

These are not positions likely to appeal to the normal American voter, though McGovern must maintain them if he is to hold the support of his political base on the left. His willingness to grant amnesty to draft-dodgers, his permissiveness as regard pot, and his sanction of abortion on demand also tell us a great deal about McGovern the man and the kind of America he desires.

McGovern badly needs inroads into the so-called blue-collar vote. Particularly among Catholic voters, I would stress his position on abortion, ditto Catholic voters are a swing constituency in many of the key states. If a Democratic candidate, forgetting about the South, as McGovern, vide Florida, has forgotten about it, is to have any chance at all, he must carry the Catholic vote in the big industrial states. McGovern isn't for a chicken in every pot; he is for pot for every chick. And he would throw out the baby with the bath.

McGovern's position on national defense would be another electoral bonanza. He wants to trim the defense budget by $32 billion. Naturally, that would endanger the very existence of the country. Even worse, from the point of view of a McGovern candidacy, it would throw millions out of work. McGovern, therefore, would be the candidate of pot, abortion, national suicide and massive unemployment.

This last would be a potent theme, not only in the great industrial heartland, but also in the aerospace and technology centers of the South and Southwest. These arguments would go very well against a McGovern candidacy in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan and Florida, New Mexico, California — just for a start.

And if this were not enough, McGovern is the candidate, of all the candidates still in the running, most zealous for "busing" to achieve school integration. I would love to write the prose on that theme, giving it plenty of time, especially in the suburbs, which now stretch from coast to coast. And you may be sure that my candidate, whoever he might be, would raise — delicately — the question of why the McGovern children, who live in Washington, D.C., do not go to Washington public schools, which are mostly black, but are shipped out to lily-white suburban schools in Maryland.

Springfield Market Workers To Vote

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ninety-seven employees of the Big Bear Store supermarkets at Springfield, Ohio, will vote May 19 on whether to join the Retail Clerks Union or no union.

This theme in the speech would strike a chord in most sections of the country.

McGovern's varied tax proposals are most complicated, but, as a speech writer, I would zero in on one of them. McGovern proposes that all personal income in excess of $50 thousand per year should be taxed at confiscatory levels (75 per cent as a minimum). No doubt McGovern and his tacticians think that this is their ace in the hole. After all, most voters do not make more than $50 thousand, so this might be a plus for McGovern. I do not think so. I do not believe that most Americans desire a country in which it is impossible to get rich, even very rich. I would guess that the Middle American earning $15,000 would not want to foreclose real affluence for his children or grandchildren. My hunch is that McGovern's proposal here is, in the strictest sense, un-American — at odds, that is, with general American emotion. Ditto, I think, for his proposal of a guaranteed annual income for everyone, regardless of wealth or willingness to work.

As a humble speech writer, I would be glad to go to the country against McGovern on these issues. I do not think that my candidate, whoever he was, would even have to get rough. He would not have to allude to McGovern's fling as a 1948 campaigner for Henry Wallace, who condoned the Soviet takeover of Czechoslovakia. My candidate, if he did not want to, would not have to delve into the political coloration of McGovern's current staff. Considering which, there is every reason why McGovern should now have been endorsed by Abbie Hoffman.

Apparently, our recent attempts at Presidential summitry looking forward to a reduction in armaments and a rapprochement of sorts with the Communist world has not appealed to the leaders of the Soviet Union. Even if a sea blockade of North Vietnam is only a partial deterrent in stopping armaments from reaching our enemies, it will be unmistakable evidence to the Russians that we cannot ignore their blatant aggression.

The sea blockade of North Vietnam recalls to mind the blockade which President Kennedy evoked against Cuba in 1962. To be sure, the situation is different, but there would be Russian missile sites on Cuba today if President Kennedy had not acted boldly in that instance just as our President has in this.

Admittedly, he is taking a political gamble by not choosing the politically safe course. The President has, I think, thrust politics aside in an act of statesmanship.

The President has indicated that we will leave South Vietnam if the North Vietnamese will release our prisoners of war and enter into an agreement for a cease fire. What is wrong with that? It must be obvious to everyone by now that the Russian leaders are intent on subjugating us in the eyes of the rest of the people of the world. I think the President should be supported.

The major legislation considered by the House this week was a controversial bill to amend the minimum wage laws. In general, the measure increases the minimum wage to $2 per hour for non-agricultural employees and to $1.80 per hour for agricultural workers. It will bring an additional 5.9 million employees under the minimum wage provisions including all government employees, domestic service employees, employees of conglomerates, full time students and those employed by preschool centers. It will repeal overtime exemptions for workers in transportation, nursing homes, sugar industry and seasonal industries. There is also a title allegedly for the protection of workers adversely affected by imports from countries with below minimum wages.

A substitute was offered that included a deferment of the increase of a "youth differential" provision at a lower minimum wage to help preserve the part-time jobs of young people. It also sought to eliminate the import provisions because this would undoubtedly trigger an international trade war that would adversely effect the economy.

In the federal establishment there are numerous committees, boards, commissions, panels, and task forces created by the Congress, the President and federal agencies for the purpose of obtaining facts and knowledgeable advice on specific problems facing the government. Presently there are no comprehensive ground rules that regulate the manner in which such advisory units function. In an effort to correct this situation, the House passed an advisory committee and establishes a Committee Management Secretariat in the Office of Management and Budget to oversee the operations of these committees. The measure also provides that all such committees will terminate after a two year period unless a termination date is otherwise provided for by law. This will help reduce waste and inefficiency.

On Tuesday the House passed a joint resolution authorizing the Seabees Memorial Association, Inc. to erect a memorial in honor and commemoration of the Seabees of the United States Navy on federal property in Washington, D. C. This will be a fitting monument for the Navy's famed "can do" construction battalion. The Association will assume the entire cost of constructing the memorial and after it is finished its maintenance will be performed by the Department of the Interior.

During the coming summer, Marines housed at the D. C. Barracks will again conduct a series of parades each Friday evening at 9:00 p.m. preceded by a U.S. Marine Band concert at 8:20. The parade season will commence on May 19 and extend through September 22.

Marines from the Barracks will also present a Sunset Parade at the Marine War Memorial (Iwo Jima Statue) in Arlington, Virginia at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday from June 6 through August 29.

Appropriate seating and parking arrangements for the Friday Evening Parades may be made by writing my Washington office at 1331 Longworth Office Building, Washington, D. C. at least two weeks in advance. Reservations are not required for the Tuesday Sunset Parades.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — If you accept the Nixon administration's outlook for the economy you are making plans for a steady decline in the rate of inflation as price and wage limitations tighten their grip.

If you are a hard-nosed economist whose opinions are the basis for corporate spending decisions you might think differently. You might even place your bet on a rise rather than a decline in inflation.

A lot of companies that subscribe to the Quarterly Review of Economic Prospects may be doing just that. The current issue states flatly: "Inflation will not be licked."

There may be a temporary improvement, it concedes, but it will be short-lived. It says, "Consumer prices will increase 3.6 per cent this year and 4.7 per cent in 1973."

That forecast is not to be taken lightly if only because of the source, which is the General Electric Co., fourth largest industrial company in the country, manufacturer of many scores of consumer items.

While looking for "broad, steady growth" in the economy overall, and expecting next year to be "somewhat stronger than anticipated earlier," the GE economists foresee elements that won't make Washington one bit happy.

Among them: —Unemployment will remain above 5.4 per cent this year, dropping to around 5 per cent by the end of 1973.

—Interest rates will rise slowly in 1972, as the economy develops momentum, and more rapidly next year, when credit becomes more restrictive.

—The housing boom has already peaked. While the number of units on which work has begun will hit a record of 2.3 million this year, only 1.9 million units will be started next year.

Is the forecast realistic? The answer can only be supplied by time. The proof, that is, will be provided by the statistical evidence available one or two years from now.

State Income Tax Reports Overdue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 60,000 of the 140,000 Ohioans who ought to have filed quarterly state income tax payments have not yet done so, State Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar said Monday.

Kosydar said post cards will be mailed to Ohioans who make incomes of $8,000 or more, not subject to withholding, to remind them that quarterly payments are due.

Kosydar says the deadline will be pushed back to June 15. After that, those who do not pay will be subject to a penalty of 5 per cent per month up to 25 per cent and 6 per cent interest on both the amount of tax and the fine.

Coins For Machines

Jingle, jingle, the coins are coming back. The jingle in the pocket has a duller tone because of the metals used in coinage today, but the supply turned out by the U.S. Mint finally is beginning to catch up with the demand.

That is particularly true of the Kennedy half dollar, which for years had the unique distinction of being the scarcest contemporary coin ever turned out by the hundreds of millions. Part of the problem was the rising price of silver, which placed a premium value on the intrinsic worth of the older part-silver coins.

Most of those coins long ago were culled from circulation. Coins now being minted contain no silver. The 300 million Kennedy halves minted last year have overcome the hoarders' appetite in most places.

The Eisenhower dollar, also with no silver content and 15 per cent lighter in weight than the older silver dollars, has not achieved a balance between supply and demand. They are particularly sought in the Western states.

A sure sign of public acceptance of the coins as mediums of exchange and not simply conversation pieces is the vending machine business. Machines with 50 cents slots which were retired from service because of unavailability of the coins are being recalled to use. Change machines used in banks and other businesses are being fitted with half dollar columns.

Automatic dry cleaning machines which will accept the dollar coins are due to appear later this year. At the same time machines which accept the larger coins are making a reappearance, notice what is happening to those which used to operate on the smallest denominations.

Inflation is taking its toll at that end of the scale.

It's Official

In its attempt to evaluate the Freedom of information act, which was passed five years ago to make more government information available to the public, the House Freedom of Information subcommittee has produced some surprising findings.

The subcommittee found 55,000 individuals in the federal government with the power to classify documents "confidential," the lowest official designation to prohibit disclosure. Of these, 18,000 also are empowered to classify documents "secret." More than 3,000 persons are authorized to wield the "top secret" stamp, the most restrictive classification.

But beyond these categories the subcommittee found a substructure of censors using many other designations, all designed to hide official papers from public scrutiny. In all, the panel found 63 restrictive designations which "hundreds of thousands of additional government bureaucrats stamp on tons of government information."

The most popular of the terms used is "Official Use." That would seem to cover about everything. Who ever heard of a government file for unofficial use?

Whatever happened to ordinary lumbago? It seems that everyone I know talks about their "slipped discs."

Is this a newfangled term for an old condition?

Dear Mr. E.: Lumbago and low-back pain may have an undistinguished identity. But they are not in competition with the "aristocrat" of back diseases, the slipped disc.

The diagnosis of the slipped disc is not a casual one, especially since the symptoms are so painful and incapacitating.

There may be a temporary improvement, it concedes, but it will be short-lived. It says, "Consumer prices will increase 3.6 per cent this year and 4.7 per cent in 1973."

That forecast is not to be taken lightly if only because of the source, which is the General Electric Co., fourth largest industrial company in the country, manufacturer of many scores of consumer items.

While looking for "broad, steady growth" in the economy overall, and expecting next year to be "somewhat stronger than anticipated earlier," the GE economists foresee elements that won't make Washington one bit happy.

Among them: —Unemployment will remain above 5.4 per cent this year, dropping to around 5 per cent by the end of 1973.

—Interest rates will rise slowly in 1972, as the economy develops momentum, and more rapidly next year, when credit becomes more restrictive.

—The housing boom has already peaked. While the number of units on which work has begun will hit a record of 2.3 million this year, only 1.9 million units will be started next year.

Is the forecast realistic? The answer can only be supplied by time. The proof, that is, will be provided by the statistical evidence available one or two years from now.

State Income Tax Reports Overdue

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — About 60,000 of the 140,000 Ohioans who ought to have filed quarterly state income tax payments have not yet done so, State Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar said Monday.

Kosydar said post cards will be mailed to Ohioans who make incomes of $8,000 or more, not subject to withholding, to remind them that quarterly payments are due.

Kosydar says the deadline will be pushed back to June 15. After that, those who do not pay will be subject to a penalty of 5 per cent per month up to 25 per cent and 6 per cent interest on both the amount of tax and the fine.

Robin Russell Designs Viking Cover

By PAM HANNAH

Teays Valley Junior High School needed a cover design for their annual this year. The Principal of the Junior High, Mr. Billy Toney, went to Mrs. Betty Midkiff, the art teacher, to find help.

Following a process of elimination, Robin Russell was chosen. Robin, who is a senior at TV, used her artistic talents to create "The Little Viking." She had to do the cover twice. The first one she did was in blue and gold and was drawn with a fine-haired brush. The colors were appropriate, but unusable. She then made it black and white. With this problem and Robin's other assignments, she worked remarkably fast, taking only two and a half weeks.

The students at Teays Valley are very proud of Robin and consider her an artist. Keep up the good work, Robin!

Wage, Price Boards End Shakeup; See Few Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Pay Board and Price Commission have survived a six-month shaking-out and are facing the future with little anticipation of major policy changes.

Officials say they're still determined to work themselves out of their jobs and return to an uncontrolled economy, probably sometime next year.

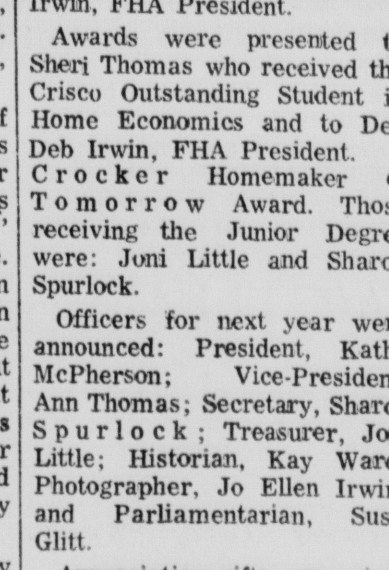

For now, the Price Commission intends to concentrate on strict enforcement of its limitation on profit margins, and the Pay Board, minus four of its labor members and four of its business members, has turned from making rules to whittling down a large backlog of pay cases.

Today marks exactly nine months since President Nixon froze wages and prices, and roughly six months since that 90-day freeze was replaced by a second phase of more-flexible controls.

Administration spokesmen say there's no proof they can't get inflation down to Nixon's goal of between 2 and 3 per cent by December. But most private economists, and even the Price Commission's own forecasters, predict the rate will be running at something a little higher than 3 per cent by year-end.

In any case, those economic returns won't be in until months after next November's presidential election returns, and for the time being the trend is in Nixon's direction.

In general, price increases seem to be winding down after jumping up when the freeze ended. But the freeze created grievances that led to problems later.

Unions that once had called for price controls were enraged when the administration denied them pay raises written into their labor contracts. Some businessmen cried that they faced bankruptcy because their prices couldn't go up. Congress began watering down the almost unlimited power it had given Nixon earlier when Democrats thought he wouldn't use it.

Wage, Price Boards End Shakeup; See Few Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board and Price Commission have survived a six-month shaking-out and are facing the future with little anticipation of major policy changes. Officials say they're still determined to work themselves out of their jobs and return to an uncontrolled economy, probably sometime next year.

For now, the Price Commission intends to concentrate on strict enforcement of its limitation on profit margins, and the Pay Board, minus four of its labor members and four of its business members, has turned down a large backlog of pay cases.

Today marks exactly nine months since President Nixon froze wages and prices, and roughly six months since that 90-day freeze was replaced by a second phase of more-flexible controls.

Administration spokesmen say there's no proof they can't get inflation down to Nixon's goal of between 2 and 3 percent by December. But most private economists, and even the Price Commission's own forecasters, predict the rate will be running at something a little higher than 3 percent by year-end.

In any case, those economic returns won't be in until months after next November's presidential election returns, and for the time being the trend is in Nixon's direction.

In general, price increases seem to be winding down after jumping up when the freeze ended. But the freeze created grievances that led to problems later.

Unions that once had called for price controls were enraged when the administration denied them pay raises written into their labor contracts. Some businessmen cried that they faced bankruptcy because their prices couldn't go up. Congress began watering down the almost unlimited power it had given Nixon earlier when Democrats thought he wouldn't use it.

Abby Column Makes Reader's Day

DEAR ABBY: You have just made my day! In your column, you listed the three top causes of friction in marriage. Jealously, money and cards.

It made me realize how lucky I am, because neither my husband nor I are attractive enough to anyone else to create jealousy, we have no extra money to fight over, and we don't play cards!

Then to top it off, your CONFIDENTIAL TO FROM THE

Bond For 8 $469,000; Protest Filed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Franklin County Municipal Court Judge G.W. Fais Monday set bonds totalling $469,000 for eight persons arrested during disorders at Ohio State University last week.

The rioting came four days after President Nixon announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

Each of the eight was charged with either first or second-degree riot, or inciting to riot.

All are being held in the city jail in lieu of bond.

None of the eight apparently is a registered student at the university.

Fais said he imposed the unusually-heavy bond requirements both because of the nature of the offenses with which they have been charged and their lack of solid ties with the community.

An attorney for three of the young people arrested, William Boyland of Columbus, charged the bonds were excessive, and accused Fais of using his power to set bond more to punish the eight than to assure their appearances in court.

The bonds set by the judge were generally in line with those suggested by the city prosecutor and local police.

Boyland is representing Jerome Friedman, 22; Colin Neiburger, 22; and Steven Abbot, 22, all of Columbus. The three surrendered to police intelligence officers early Monday.

Protest Is Held Against Abortions

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Several hundred demonstrators conducted a Mothers Day protest against abortion Sunday outside Vancouver General Hospital.

A spokesman for the Pro-Life Action Committee said the demonstration was to dramatize demands for a judicial inquiry into "hospital committees and their rubber stamp attitude" toward abortions.

About 2,000 such operations were performed last year at the hospital, the group said.

The energy in one pound of uranium can perform as much work as three million pounds of coal.

OLD SCHOOL: "Welcome to the club. Very few of us who had 'old world' parents were told the facts of life by our mothers. All my mother told me, God bless her, was never to put bananas in the refrigerator."

"It gave me the biggest laugh I've had in years. I roared aloud to an empty house as my husband had gone to work."

All the bad news in the rest of the newspaper, nor anything thrown to me for the rest of the day, can erase the warm, lighthearted feeling I got from reading your column today.

Just had to let you know.

D.W. IN MINNESOTA
DEAR D.W.: We're even! Your letter just made my day! Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I rented an apartment in an expensive high-rise building. About six months ago, a very lonely older couple in their sixties rented the apartment right next to ours, and we haven't had a good night's sleep since.

Their quarreling and bickering can be heard until the wee hours of the morning. The way they shout at each other, they must be deaf.

We can't say that they are actually disturbing the peace because they don't have any crashing, smashing fights, just very noisy arguments that last until dawn.

We hate to complain to the management because the people are quite charming. Any suggestions?

THE FOLKS NEXT DOOR
DEAR FOLKS: If you haven't told them that they are keeping you up nights, that should be your first order of business. Perhaps they ARE hard of hearing, and hopefully your complaint will inspire them to get hearing aids.

Your letter raises two questions: 1. How do you figure they aren't disturbing your peace if they keep you up nights? 2. How do you define "charming?"

DEAR ABBY: This concerns your unsympathetic answer to "EXHAUSTED" who was drained dry by her mother's endless list of unreasonable demands. You said, "After all, she IS your mother."

I won't say, "Shame on you, Dear Abby," because through the years of reading your column, it is my bet that you had the kind of mother many of us would like to have had. However, I for one wasn't that fortunate, so I know how "EXHAUSTED" feels.

While your advice was sound, you should have added, "If you can't beat it (the situation) and you can't join it, you will have to learn to walk away from it-for a while. Let Mom run her own vacuum, make her own bed and write her own checks. Your own health is more important to you and your family than anyone's else's."

Cold-hearted and cruel? Not at all. Just sensible. My own children taught me that most mothers EARN the treatment they get from their children in their later years. And the person who so wisely pointed this out to me said, "Your mother IS your mother, but it was HER act that caused it — not yours."

History Bypasses Quemoy, Matsu

By LEONARD PRATT

MATSU (AP) — The landing ship lay nosed into the sand, its bow doors gaping like the jaws of a beached whale, as Nationalist Chinese soldiers trooped aboard.

"They're the happy ones," a local onlooker said. "They're going home."

But though a few hundred of Matsu's garrison were going home to Taiwan, ending their two-year hitch on the island, thousands more were remaining behind in the rocky hills of the island, just a few miles from the port of Foochow on mainland.

Some 200 miles to the south a larger Nationalist garrison holds Quemoy island in the mouth of the mainland's Amoy harbor. The army's lonely vigil on about 15 such islands along the China coast is all that remains of Chiang Kai-shek's hold on the China mainland.

None of the islands has seen battle for 12 years.

The Nationalists cannot leave, if only because they have spent so much effort building up the islands and telling their allies how essential they are. Nor could Peking throw them out without heavy losses and a spate of unfavorable publicity.

With both sides at stalemate, the islands have settled into that kind of tranquility enjoyed by old battlefields that time has passed by.

Communists and Nationalists have worked out a series of tacit agreements to keep the peace while maintaining the image of war.

Planes flying to Quemoy make the last half-hour of their flights at wave-top level, "to stay under the Communist radar," one officer explained. Slow-moving transports fly under cover of supersonic fighters based on Taiwan.

But Nationalist pilots themselves note the maneuvers are more precaution than necessity.

"Communist planes are always careful to stay about 10 miles in from the coast," one pilot said.

Nor do mainland craft give much trouble to Nationalist sailors escorting convoys to the Matsu islands.

The islands were last rocked by heavy Communist shelling in 1960.

Token U.S. support for the islands continues despite President Nixon's trip to China. Quemoy and Matsu each have an advisory team, a colonel and four enlisted men.

Many U.S. officials long ago wrote off the islands militarily. Efforts have been made to encourage the Nationalists to reduce their commitment to the islands, on grounds they are too expensive to maintain and tie down too many of the government's best troops.

But even if the value of the islands is questionable in military terms, they are crucial to the ruling myth that the Nationalists are the government of all China.

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television reacted rapidly, if a bit shakily, to the news of the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Programs were interrupted Monday with bulletins and short reports on what was known within minutes of the tragedy. But once again it was good old flexible radio to which the viewer turned during the initial moments of the developing drama for a minute-by-minute fill in on what was then a fluid and somewhat confused situation.

Viewers flipping around radio and TV dials first encountered little news but lots of heavy breathing and hyperbole—all sorts of opinions came over the air. At one point this listener heard about alleged involvement by blacks in the shooting. Almost immediately, on another station, this rumor was scotched by a report that a blond white man was in custody for the shooting.

Eventually ABC television came along with a broadcast showing what appeared to be a blond man being hauled away by authorities.

CBS obtained, it appeared, the first dramatic material—actual scenes of Wallace moving around the crowd, the sound of the shots and then the aftermath. There was a closeup of the presidential aspirant on the ground, blood stain on his shirt, and his wife bending over him.

NBC interrupted its feature film broadcast in the late evening for a 20-minute summary of the situation up to that point. It showed some confusing film made at the time of the shooting, had an equivocal report on Wallace's condition made from outside the hospital and went on to show some old clips of film made during other Wallace campaigns.

Fast breaking stories are not gracefully absorbed by television but radio is easily able to keep up with bulletins, handle interviews and generally keep the public informed under such conditions.

Television, however, did serve one vital function in reflecting the reaction—revulsion and shame—of average men and women to the use of violence. The reaction was uniform, in an assortment of "man-on-the-street" interviews, quite regardless of the political opinions of the individuals questioned.

Bond For 8 $469,000; Protest Filed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Franklin County Municipal Court Judge G.W. Fais Monday set bonds totalling $469,000 for eight persons arrested during disorders at Ohio State University last week.

The rioting came four days after President Nixon announced the mining of North Vietnamese ports.

Each of the eight was charged with either first or second-degree riot, or inciting to riot.

All are being held in the city jail in lieu of bond.

None of the eight apparently is a registered student at the university.

Fais said he imposed the unusually-heavy bond requirements both because of the nature of the offenses with which they have been charged and their lack of solid ties with the community.

An attorney for three of the young people arrested, William Boyland of Columbus, charged the bonds were excessive, and accused Fais of using his power to set bond more to punish the eight than to assure their appearances in court.

The bonds set by the judge were generally in line with those suggested by the city prosecutor and local police.

Boyland is representing Jerome Friedman, 22; Colin Neiburger, 22; and Steven Abbot, 22, all of Columbus. The three surrendered to police intelligence officers early Monday.

Protest Is Held Against Abortions

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Several hundred demonstrators conducted a Mothers Day protest against abortion Sunday outside Vancouver General Hospital.

A spokesman for the Pro-Life Action Committee said the demonstration was to dramatize demands for a judicial inquiry into "hospital committees and their rubber stamp attitude" toward abortions.

About 2,000 such operations were performed last year at the hospital, the group said.

The energy in one pound of uranium can perform as much work as three million pounds of coal.

OLD SCHOOL: "Welcome to the club. Very few of us who had 'old world' parents were told the facts of life by our mothers. All my mother told me, God bless her, was never to put bananas in the refrigerator."

"It gave me the biggest laugh I've had in years. I roared aloud to an empty house as my husband had gone to work."

All the bad news in the rest of the newspaper, nor anything thrown to me for the rest of the day, can erase the warm, lighthearted feeling I got from reading your column today.

Just had to let you know.

DEAR ABBY: We're even!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I rented an apartment in an expensive high-rise building. About six months ago, a very lonely older couple in their sixties rented the apartment right next to ours, and we haven't had a good night's sleep since.

We hate to complain to the management because the people are quite charming. Any suggestions?

House . . . High Court Decision Frees Amish From Prosecution

ership may be asked to support the bill.
"We still don't know what is constitutional," the governor said recently. "We're checking into it, and we may have an alternative later on."

Proponents of the bill say failure to come up with some kind of support for parochial and private schools will force a number of students into an already overcrowded state public school system.

The Senate's only floor vote session of the week Monday night and faced the same problem Murdock had with his committee.

Just 21 of the 33 members of the upper chamber were on hand for the beginning of the brief, 30-minute session. Six other senators showed up before the session ended.

The Senate's only floor vote came on a House bill to change the organization date of the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission from Jan. 1, as now required by law, to "within the first ten days of January."

It passed.
A number of bills were introduced into the upper chamber, including ones to extend police and firemen pension benefits to widows and dependent children and to members who resign or are fired before the age of 52, and to allow servicemen to renew expired drivers licenses without examination.

Deny Clark's Appeal In Money Claim

An appeal, asking for reversal of a local court ruling allowing government immunity for the Westfall School District in a civil suit, was dismissed earlier this month by the Fourth District Court of Appeals.

The request, filed by Michael D. Clark of Williamsport, sought an extension from the court on the time in which he could appeal the local court's ruling. Judge Earl Stephenson, speaking for the district court, denied the request, stating, "Unfortunately for the appellant's position, the court has no authority in civil cases as in criminal" to extend the 30 day period for notice of appeal to be filed.

Clark is seeking a total of $105,000 for injuries he received in 1958 when struck by a Westfall school bus operated by J. Norman Leist. He has named Leist and the school district in the claim, but the Common Pleas Judge William Ammer ruled that the school was protected from suit under a law granting immunity to the state and any of its branches. The Williamsport resident was protesting that ruling on the basis that such immunity has not existed since 1912.

Judge Ammer's ruling was handed down Feb. 3, 1971, making early April the time by which Clark's notice of appeal had to be recorded. The notice was not filed until April 29.

Poison Maker Hit On Labeling

CINCINNATI (AP)—A commercial poison manufacturer has been cited on 21-counts for failing to properly label its products and for selling weaker than advertised products.

The U. S. Attorney's office Monday named Archem Corp. of Portsmouth, Ohio, in an action in U. S. District Court.

The action charged the firm failed to print warnings on labels and that stronger solutions are listed on labels than are contained in the company's products, according to Norbert A. Nadel, first assistant U. S. attorney for Southern Ohio.

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The 50,000 Amish "Plain People" living close to the soil in communities in 19 states have won immunity in the Supreme Court from state laws requiring a formal education beyond the eighth grade.

The 7-0 decision Monday, delivered by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, affirmed the right of these descendants of Swiss Anabaptists to shun 20th Century learning and to live by the Biblical injunction from the Epistle of Paul to the Romans: "Be not conformed to this world . . ."

In Wisconsin as in eight other states, Amish parents have been prosecuted for keeping their adolescent children out of high school. The Amish permit formal school through the eighth grade and consider it best that afterward children's education be confined to at-home agricultural experience.

Burger said the court recognized the interest of the states in universal education. But, he said, the very existence of the Amish would be threatened if they were compelled to send their children to public or private high schools which emphasize intellectual and scientific accomplishments, self-discipline, competitiveness, worldly success and social life with other students.

Burger said the Amish are "productive and very law-abiding" and that in Green County, Wis., where the case originated, they never had been known to commit crimes, receive public assistance or be unemployed.

With this record, he went on, there is no basis to fear that without a year or two of additional schooling an Amish teenager is likely to become a "burden on society" if he leaves the faith.

He suggested that Wisconsin consider the course taken by Pennsylvania, Iowa and some other states in reaching an accommodation with the Amish. There they attend an Amish vocational school part of the time and are taught English, mathematics, health and social study by an Amish teacher. The remainder of the week they perform farm and household duties under supervision of their parents.

William B. Ball, a Harrisburg, Pa., lawyer who led the fight to the Supreme Court, said of the decision: "This will end all harassment in the field of Amish education (which) turns out a man able to manage a farm, a man of ecology, a man of peace."

All seven justices who participated in the case—Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist did not because it was argued before they were sworn in—agreed that Wisconsin could not prosecute the parents of Amish children.

But three of the justices, Byron R. White, William J. Brennan Jr. and Potter Stewart, said it would have been a very different case if the Amish forbade schooling through the eighth grade.

And a fourth, William O. Douglas, took exception to aspects of Burger's decision. Significantly, from a legal viewpoint, he said the courts should concern themselves with the wishes of the Amish children as well as the parents.

Douglas also questioned Burger's belief that the Amish are so set apart and different from other Americans. He noted findings that drinking is common, that their rate of suicide is at least as high as the national rate and that they have an unfortunate preoccupation with filthy stories.

"I think the emphasis of the court on the 'law-and-order' record of this Amish group of people is quite irrelevant," Douglas said. "A religion is a religion irrespective of what the misdemeanor or felony records of its members might be."

In another ruling, the court

required a company which takes over a job to deal with the workers' old union.

The 5-4 decision dealt with security guards at a California airport. A majority were retained by Burns when it succeeded Wackenhut as the employer.

However, in the same case and by a unanimous vote, the justices held Burns was not required to abide by terms of the Wackenhut labor contract with the United Plant Guard Workers Union.

White also delivered an 8-1 decision that approved a search of a locked gun storeroom without a warrant government agents. The ruling upheld the conviction of Loarn Anthony Biswell, a Hobbs, N.M., pawnshop owner, under the 1968 federal gun-control law and reversed the U.S. Circuit Court in Denver which found the search in violation of the 4th Amendment to the Constitution.

In other actions the court: —Turned down an appeal by the Norfolk, Va., school board from a ruling that requires the free busing of some 24,000 children assigned under desegregation plans to schools more than walking distance from their homes.

—Agreed to decide next term whether a swimming pool association in Montgomery county, Md., may continue to exclude Nacks as members or guests.

—Rejected an appeal by Edward V. Hanrahan, the Cook County, Ill., state's attorney, and 10 police officers facing trial next month on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice in the 1969 raid slayings of Black Panther leaders Fred Hampton and Mark Clark.

—Denied a hearing to Don Vestal, an outspoken foe of James R. Hoffa whose Nashville, Tenn., Teamsters local was placed under a trusteeship last year.

—Rejected a new-trial plea by Carmine G. De Sapio, the former Democratic leader in

New York who is serving a two-year sentence for bribery conspiracy.

—Rejected an appeal by Texas and San Antonio officials designed to resume construction of an expressway to San Antonio's airport that has been halted by a suit brought by a group of conservationists.

Trip's On, Pat Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will be going to Moscow after all, his wife says. "It's no secret. It's on," Mrs. Nixon said Monday.

It was the first firm word from the White House that the President's recent moves in Southeast Asia and the subsequent Russian opposition would not block the Moscow summit meeting.

Mrs. Nixon said she and the President will be departing Saturday morning for Salzburg, Austria, the first stop on the four-country, two-week journey.

Asked if she would be disappointed if the trip were called off, she said, "Of course I would, because I think it's going to be good for the world."

She said she has been practicing some Russian words and reading briefing papers and is planning to visit a school, university and the famous Moscow subway.

Board Frees $100 Million In Funding

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Without much discussion the state Controlling Board Monday released nearly $100 million in public funds for use by various departments and agencies of state government.

The board is final arbiter of state spending. It must approve release of every dollar of state funds appropriated by the legislature to meet the state's financial needs during its fiscal biennium.

Approval was routinely given for the release of:
—$76.4 million for the May school foundation payments.
—$9.6 million to cover state department and agency expenses for the fourth quarter of the current fiscal year.

—$7.2 million from the General Fund to the Public Improvements Bond Retirement Fund for debt service payments due June 15.

—$1.01 million to the Department of Welfare for Aid to the Blind and Aid to the Disabled programs. The money was transferred from the Health Care appropriation.

—$238,618 to the Ohio State University Board of Trustees for the purchase of 63 acres of land bordering Don Scott Field, the school's airport.

ership may be asked to support the bill.

"We still don't know what is constitutional," the governor said recently. "We're checking into it, and we may have an alternative later on."

Proponents of the bill say failure to come up with some kind of support for parochial and private schools will force a number of students into an already overcrowded state public school system.

The Senate's only floor vote session of the week Monday night and faced the same problem Murdock had with his committee.

Just 21 of the 33 members of the upper chamber were on hand for the beginning of the brief, 30-minute session. Six other senators showed up before the session ended.

The Senate's only floor vote came on a House bill to change the organization date of the Ohio Constitutional Revision Commission from Jan. 1, as now required by law, to "within the first ten days of January."

It passed.
A number of bills were introduced into the upper chamber, including ones to extend police and firemen pension benefits to widows and dependent children and to members who resign or are fired before the age of 52, and to allow servicemen to renew expired drivers licenses without examination.

Deny Clark's Appeal In Money Claim

An appeal, asking for reversal of a local court ruling allowing government immunity for the Westfall School District in a civil suit, was dismissed earlier this month by the Fourth District Court of Appeals.

The request, filed by Michael D. Clark of Williamsport, sought an extension from the court on the time in which he could appeal the local court's ruling. Judge Earl Stephenson, speaking for the district court, denied the request, stating, "Unfortunately for the appellant's position, the court has no authority in civil cases as in criminal" to extend the 30 day period for notice of appeal to be filed.

Clark is seeking a total of $105,000 for injuries he received in 1958 when struck by a Westfall school bus operated by J. Norman Leist. He has named Leist and the school district in the claim, but the Common Pleas Judge William Ammer ruled that the school was protected from suit under a law granting immunity to the state and any of its branches. The Williamsport resident was protesting that ruling on the basis that such immunity has not existed since 1912.

Judge Ammer's ruling was handed down Feb. 3, 1971, making early April the time by which Clark's notice of appeal had to be recorded. The notice was not filed until April 29.

Poison Maker Hit On Labeling

CINCINNATI (AP)—A commercial poison manufacturer has been cited on 21-counts for failing to properly label its products and for selling weaker than advertised products.

The U. S. Attorney's office Monday named Archem Corp. of Portsmouth, Ohio, in an action in U. S. District Court.

The action charged the firm failed to print warnings on labels and that stronger solutions are listed on labels than are contained in the company's products, according to Norbert A. Nadel, first assistant U. S. attorney for Southern Ohio.

High Court Decision Frees Amish From Prosecution

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 50,000 Amish "Plain People" living close to the soil in communities in 19 states have won immunity in the Supreme Court from state laws requiring a formal education beyond the eighth grade.

The 7-0 decision Monday, delivered by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, affirmed the right of these descendants of Swiss Anabaptists to shun 20th Century learning and to live by the Biblical injunction from the Epistle of Paul to the Romans: "Be not conformed to this world . . ."

In Wisconsin as in eight other states, Amish parents have been prosecuted for keeping their adolescent children out of high school. The Amish permit formal school through the eighth grade and consider it best that afterward children's education be confined to at-home agricultural experience.

Burger said the court recognized the interest of the states in universal education. But, he said, the very existence of the Amish would be threatened if they were compelled to send their children to public or private high schools which emphasize intellectual and scientific accomplishments, self-distinction, competitiveness, worldly success and social life with other students.

Burger said the Amish are "productive and very law-abiding" and that in Green County, Wis., where the case originated, they never had been known to commit crimes, receive public assistance or be unemployed.

With this record, he went on, there is no basis to fear that without a year or two of additional schooling an Amish teenager is likely to become a "burden on society" if he leaves the faith.

He suggested that Wisconsin consider the course taken by Pennsylvania, Iowa and some other states in reaching an accommodation with the Amish. There they attend an Amish vocational school part of the time and are taught English, mathematics, health and social study by an Amish teacher. The remainder of the week they perform farm and household duties under supervision of their parents.

William B. Ball, a Harrisburg, Pa., lawyer who led the fight to the Supreme Court, said of the decision: "This will end all harassment in the field of Amish education (which) turns out a man able to manage a farm, a man of ecology, a man of peace."

All seven justices who participated in the case—Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist did not because it was argued before they were sworn in—agreed that Wisconsin could not prosecute the parents of Amish children.

But three of the justices, Byron R. White, William J. Brennan Jr. and Potter Stewart, said it would have been a very different case if the Amish forbade schooling through the eighth grade.

And a fourth, William O. Douglas, took exception to aspects of Burger's decision. Significantly, from a legal viewpoint, he said the courts should concern themselves with the wishes of the Amish children as well as the parents.

Douglas also questioned Burger's belief that the Amish are so set apart and different from other Americans. He noted findings that drinking is common, that their rate of suicide is at least as high as the national rate and that they have an unfortunate preoccupation with filthy stories.

"I think the emphasis of the court on the 'law-and-order' record of this Amish group of people is quite irrelevant," Douglas said. "A religion is a religion irrespective of what the misdemeanor or felony records of its members might be."

In another ruling, the court

required a company which takes over a job to deal with the workers' old union.

The 5-4 decision dealt with security guards at a California airport. A majority were retained by Burns when it succeeded Wackenhut as the employer.

However, in the same case and by a unanimous vote, the justices held Burns was not required to abide by terms of the Wackenhut labor contract with the United Plant Guard Workers Union.

White also delivered an 8-1 decision that approved a search of a locked gun storeroom without a warrant government agents. The ruling upheld the conviction of Loam Anthony Biswell, a Hobbs, N.M., pawnshop owner, under the 1968 federal gun-control law and reversed the U.S. Circuit Court in Denver which found the search in violation of the 4th Amendment to the Constitution.

In other actions the court:

—Turned down an appeal by the Norfolk, Va., school board from a ruling that requires the free busing of some 24,000 children assigned under desegregation plans to schools more than walking distance from their homes.

—Agreed to decide next term whether a swimming pool association in Montgomery county, Md., may continue to exclude blacks as members or guests.

—Rejected an appeal by Edward V. Hanrahan, the Cook County, Ill., state's attorney, and 10 police officers facing trial next month on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice in the 1969 raid slayings of Black Panther leaders Fred Hampton and Mark Clark.

—Denied a hearing to Don Vestal, an outspoken foe of James R. Hoffa whose Nashville, Tenn., Teamsters local was placed under a trusteeship last year.

—Rejected a new-trial plea by Carmine G. De Sapio, the former Democratic leader in

New York who is serving a two-year sentence for bribery conspiracy.

—Rejected an appeal by Texas and San Antonio officials designed to resume construction of an expressway to San Antonio's airport that has been halted by a suit brought by a group of conservationists.

Trip's On, Pat Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will be going to Moscow after all, his wife says. "It's no secret. It's on," Mrs. Nixon said Monday.

It was the first firm word from the White House that the President's recent moves in Southeast Asia and the subsequent Russian opposition would not block the Moscow summit meeting.

Mrs. Nixon said she and the President will be departing Saturday morning for Salzburg, Austria, the first stop on the four-country, two-week journey. Asked if she would be disappointed if the trip were called off, she said, "Of course I would, because I think it's going to be good for the world."

She said she has been practicing some Russian words and reading briefing papers and is planning to visit a school, university and the famous Moscow subway.

Board Frees $100 Million In Funding

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Without much discussion the state Controlling Board Monday released nearly $100 million in public funds for use by various departments and agencies of state government.

The board is final arbiter of state spending. It must approve release of every dollar of state funds appropriated by the legislature to meet the state's financial needs during its fiscal biennium.

Approval was routinely given for the release of:
—$76.4 million for the May school foundation payments.
—$9.6 million to cover state department and agency expenses for the fourth quarter of the current fiscal year.

—$7.2 million from the General Fund to the Public Improvements Bond Retirement Fund for debt service payments due June 15.
—$1.01 million to the Department of Welfare for Aid to the Blind and Aid to the Disabled programs. The money was transferred from the Health Care appropriation.

—$238,618 to the Ohio State University Board of Trustees for the purchase of 63 acres of land bordering Don Scott Field, the school's airport.

Unser Raises Lap Speed At Speedway To 196.678

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The railbirds brought out their sliderules at Indianapolis Monday and took a second look at Bobby Unser's breathtaking 196.678 qualifying lap.

Among other things they figured:

—Had the Albuquerque N.M. driver gone 219.13 feet further in his elapsed time of 45.76 seconds he'd have reduced his time to 45 seconds flat and his lap speed would have been 200 miles per hour.

—Putting it another way 293.3 feet per second is 200 m.p.h. at the 2¼-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway oval. Unser covered 289 feet each second he was under the clock.

Slow Pitch Resets Postponed Games

Pickaway County Slow Pitch games which were rained out Sunday have been rescheduled for Tuesday and Thursday.

Tuesday's games are: 6:30 p.m. — Lewis Cook Ins. vs Morgan Sporting Goods; 7:45 p.m. — Hartley Builders vs Asville Bar and Grill.

Thursday's schedule: 6:30 p.m. — Circleville Oil vs Scioto Elks; 7:45 p.m. — Tomlinson Electric vs PPG; 9 p.m. — DuPont D Shift vs DuPont G Shift.

—Or as one of the seasoned observers put it "Say the words '1000-to-1' real quick and you've already used the time he needed to do 200. Or simply blink your eyelashes three times."

Unser driving one of Dan Gurney's Olsonite Eagles ripped off four laps at an astounding 195.940 m.p.h. to take a stranglehold on the pole position for the May 27 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

It was as still another sideline put it "The greatest combination of driver machine and sheer courage in the history of auto racing."

But while the Speedway crowd was still agog over a record-shattering performance Sunday that lifted the one-and-four-lap marks more than 17 m.p.h. over anything ever recorded at the ancient brickyard work went on for the other drivers—particularly Mark Donohue and Pete Revson.

These two hotshots are the only top contenders who still have a shot at Unser's pole position in final time trials this weekend. Even then, the best they may hope for is to snatch the other two front row spots being held for the time being by Gary Bettenhausen and Mario Andretti.

Bettenhausen qualified his McLaren at 188.877 m.p.h. Sunday.

day for the second-best time of the day. Andretti put one of Parnelli Jones' radical new cars in the lineup at 187.617.

Donohue worked his Roger Penske McLaren up to 190.114 Monday. Revson also hovered near the 190 mark in a Team McLaren car, though he already has done over 191 in practice.

Twelve drivers made the 33-car lineup Sunday, averaging a sizzling 183.980 m.p.h. for the 48 miles they covered.

Putt-Putt Tourney Set By Association

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Labeling their move "an attempt to break the veil of obscurity," the Professional Putters Association announced plans Monday for a $200,000 world putt-putt tournament which will have its championship rounds Aug. 14-15 in Winston-Salem.

The winner will receive $15,000.

"This is a blatant attempt to popularize our sport, to break the veil of obscurity, to create superstars," admitted Don Clayton, founder of putt-putt golf and chairman of the board of the PPA.

Fine Hitting, Pitching Key To LE Season

Good hitting and solid pitching have earned Logan Elm a 14-1 record for the season and a 7-1 mark in Scioto Valley Conference play.

Ken Kurtz leads the hitting assault with 11 hits in 21 trips to the plate for a .524 average; Gary Francis has 27 hits in 60 appearances for .450; Mark Justus, 20 of 54, .370; Doug Marshall, 19 of 52, .365; Rick Blankenship, 18 of 51, .353; Mike Holbrook, 14 of 40, .350; and Scott Pontius has five hits in six attempts for a .833.

In the runs batted in department, Blankenship leads with 18, Mark Justus and Doug Marshall both have 14 and Francis has sent 13 runners across the plate.

Blankenship (5-0) leads the pitchers with an earned run average of 0.80. He has hurled 35 innings, allowed 18 hits, walked nine and struckout 43.

Doug Marshall (4-0) has a 1.81 ERA, pitched 27 innings, allowed 19 hits, 10 walks, struckout 45; Francis (3-0) 2.52 ERA, hurled 25 innings, given up 18 hits, 12 walks, fanned 37; Gary Wertman (3-1 and one save), 3.35 ERA, pitched 23 innings, allowed 18 hits, 18 walks, struckout 23.

The Braves have a team batting average of .323 and a combined 1.95 ERA in the pitching department.

Reds Games Shortest

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sunday's doubleheader here in which the Cincinnati Reds completed a four-game sweep of the St. Louis Cardinals was played in the shortest time in modern history, a 22-year search of records indicates.

The Reds 4-3 win in the first game took only one hour and 58 minutes. Tom Hall's 2-0 shutout in the nightcap lasted only 1:15. No doubleheader in Cincinnati since 1949 was accomplished so quickly, according to a Reds spokesman.

However, a doubleheader involving the Reds with the Cubs at Chicago Sept. 4, 1957, took eight minutes less. Games of 1:37 and 2:20 totaled 237 minutes.

The longest doubleheader here since 1949 came on July 8, 1962 when the Reds and Houston took 3:01 to play the first game then were locked in a 13-inning marathon which lasted 5:06.

Gail Diller Wins Lebanon Feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Gail Diller took the lead in the backstretch and won the featured pace mile at Lebanon Raceway Monday night by a length and a half in 2:04 4-5.

The nine-year-old bay mare returned $6.20, $5.00 and $3.20. Tronita's Son was second, $8.20 and $4.20 and Scotch Ricky, third, $4.20.

No Le Hace Arrives For Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — No Le Hace, one of only three horses given a serious chance of beating Kentucky Derby winner Riva Ridge in Saturday's Preakness Stakes, was scheduled to arrive at Pimlico Race Course today in preparation for the 97th running of the $150,000-added classic.

"He's fit and ready to run," trainer Homer Pardue said in an interview Monday following a workout at Belmont Park in which the Derby runnerup worked six furlongs in 1:15 2-5.

The Preakness field firmed up at nine Monday when trainer Bill Raymond named Freetex a definite starter.

Raymond, who was undecided about Freetex after his sixth-place finish in the Kentucky Derby, said he reached his decision after the colt worked five-eighths of a mile in 1:00 4-5 last Saturday.

"He turned in such good work, I decided to give him a chance," Raymond said by telephone from New York.

Both Freetex and Eager Exchange are scheduled to be shipped to Pimlico from New York either Wednesday or Thursday. The other six entries for the 1 3-16-mile race, which will gross $189,800 if all nine start, already are on the grounds.

Earl Hart, Pimlico's program oddsmaker, has installed the Meadow Stable entry of Riva Ridge and Upper Case as the 6-5 choice.

Key to the Mint, Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stable entry, was quoted at 2-1 following his impressive victory in Saturday's Preakness Prep. No Le Hace was pegged at 6-1 and Freetex at 12-1.

Unser Raises Lap Speed At Speedway To 196.678

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The railbirds brought out their sliderules at Indianapolis Monday and took a second look at Bobby Unser's breathtaking 196.678 qualifying lap.

Among other things they figured:

—Had the Albuquerque N.M. driver gone 219.13 feet further in his elapsed time of 45.76 seconds he'd have reduced his time to 45 seconds flat and his lap speed would have been 200 miles per hour.

—Putting it another way 293.3 feet per second is 200 m.p.h. at the 2½-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway oval. Unser covered 289 feet each second he was under the clock.

Slow Pitch Resets Postponed Games

Pickaway County Slow Pitch games which were rained out Sunday have been rescheduled for Tuesday and Thursday.

Tuesday's games are: 6:30 p.m. — Lewis Cook Ins. vs Morgan Sporting Goods; 7:45 p.m. — Hartley Builders vs Asyville Bar and Grill.

Thursday's schedule: 6:30 p.m. — Circleville Oil vs Scioto Elks; 7:45 p.m. — Tomlinson Electric vs PPG; 9 p.m. — DuPont D Shift vs DuPont G Shift.

—Or as one of the seasoned observers put it "Say the words '1000-to-1' real quick and you've already used the time he needed to do 200. Or simply blink your eyelashes three times."

Unser driving one of Dan Gurney's Olsonite Eagles ripped off four laps at an astounding 195.940 m.p.h. to take a stranglehold on the pole position for the May 27 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

It was as still another sideline put it "The greatest combination of driver machine and sheer courage in the history of auto racing."

But while the Speedway crowd was still agog over a record-shattering performance Sunday that lifted the one-and-four-lap marks more than 17 m.p.h. over anything ever recorded at the ancient brickyard work went on for the other drivers—particularly Mark Donohue and Pete Revson.

These two hotshots are the only top contenders who still have a shot at Unser's pole position in final time trials this weekend. Even then, the best they may hope for is to snatch the other two front row spots being held for the time being by Gary Bettenhausen and Mario Andretti.

Bettenhausen qualified his McLaren at 188.877 m.p.h. Sunday for the second-best time of the day. Andretti put one of Parnelli Jones' radical new cars in the lineup at 187.617.

Donohue worked his Roger Penske McLaren up to 190.114 Monday. Revson also hovered near the 190 mark in a Team McLaren car, though he already has done over 191 in practice.

Twelve drivers made the 33-car lineup Sunday, averaging a sizzling 183.980 m.p.h. for the 48 miles they covered.

Putt-Putt Tourney Set By Association

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Labeling their move "an attempt to break the veil of obscurity," the Professional Putters Association announced plans Monday for a $200,000 world putt-putt tournament which will have its championship rounds Aug. 14-15 in Winston-Salem.

The winner will receive $15,000.

"This is a blatant attempt to popularize our sport, to break the veil of obscurity, to create superstars," admitted Don Clayton, founder of putt-putt golf and chairman of the board of the PPA.

Jockey Is Injured At River Downs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Jockey Romero Hidalgo was released from a hospital after treatment for facial contusions Monday following a fall in the first race. It was the third of four falls in two days of racing.

River Downs officials planned an examination of the final turn before the stretch today to determine the cause of the accidents there. It was thought to be caused by water from recent heavy rains. In each case, jockeys have been thrown by shying horses.

ANOTHER TROPHY — Jim Lint (left), Circleville High School track coach, accepts the trophy for winning the Pickaway County meet Monday from Bob Stant, track coach for the host school

Logan Elm. CHS track teams under Lint's direction have added more hardware to the Tiger trophy case during the last nine years than ever before.

Fine Hitting, Pitching Key To LE Season

Good hitting and solid pitching have earned Logan Elm a 14-1 record for the season and a 7-1 mark in Scioto Valley Conference play.

Ken Kurtz leads the hitting assault with 11 hits in 21 trips to the plate for a .524 average; Gary Francis has 27 hits in 60 appearances for .450; Mark Justus, 20 of 54, .370; Doug Marshall, 19 of 52, .365; Rick Blankenship, 18 of 51, .353; Mike Holbrook, 14 of 40, .350; and Scott Pontius has five hits in six attempts for a torrid .833.

In the runs batted in department, Blankenship leads with 18. Mark Justus and Doug Marshall both have 14 and Francis has sent 13 runners across the plate.

Blankenship (5-0) leads the pitchers with an earned run average of 0.80. He has hurled 35 innings, allowed 18 hits, walked nine and struckout 43.

Doug Marshall (4-0) has a 1.81 ERA, pitched 27 innings, allowed 19 hits, 10 walks, struckout 45; Francis (3-0) 2.52 ERA, hurled 25 innings, given up 18 hits, 12 walks, fanned 37; Gary Wertman (3-1 and one save), 3.35 ERA, pitched 23 innings, allowed 18 hits, 18 walks, struckout 23.

The Braves have a team batting average of .323 and a combined 1.95 ERA in the pitching department.

Reds Games Shortest

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sunday's doubleheader here in which the Cincinnati Reds completed a four-game sweep of the St. Louis Cardinals was played in the shortest time in modern history, a 22-year search of records indicates.

The Reds 4-3 win in the first game took only one hour and 58 minutes. Tom Hall's 2-0 shutout in the nightcap lasted only 1:15. No doubleheader in Cincinnati since 1949 was accomplished so quickly, according to a Reds spokesman.

However, a doubleheader involving the Reds with the Cubs at Chicago Sept. 4, 1957, took eight minutes less. Games of 1:37 and 2:20 totaled 237 minutes.

The longest doubleheader here since 1949 came on July 8, 1962 when the Reds and Houston took 3:01 to play the first game then were locked in a 13-inning marathon which lasted 5:06.

McLain Sent To Minors By Oakland

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Pitches which lacked steam and a medical problem were cited by Oakland A's manager Dick Williams when he broke the news that former 31-game winner Denny McLain was optioned to the minor leagues.

"He just wasn't throwing the ball as hard as we know he can," said Williams of the right-hander who has a $75,000 contract.

McLain, apparently informed of the move Monday morning by As owner Charles Finley did not make the trip with the team here for a series with the California Angels.

Williams said the pitcher visited a doctor on Sunday who blamed a medication McLain was taking for making the pitcher feel weak.

The prescription was changed, Williams said, but he didn't mention what ailment McLain was under treatment for.

Over the weekend, Williams had demoted McLain to the A's bullpen after the pitcher was hit hard in his last start. "I don't think he has the velocity he had in the past," the manager said then. "I go on what I see out there. . . . From the way he's throwing, and the statistics show it, I don't think he could help anybody right now."

Bee Bee Bee, winner of the survivor Stakes at Pimlico earlier this year, was quoted at 15-1, with Eager Exchange, Festive Mood and Hassi's Image, the 11th-place finisher in the Derby, all at 20-1.

Circleville Bible College expects to be represented worldwide during the coming summer through its missionary internship program.

Eleven appointments of successful candidates have been announced by the college. This represents not only the largest group to participate in the program, but also the most widely scattered fields of ministry.

Cooperating with the Bible College are the Missionary Department of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union, the church affiliation; and the World Gospel Mission of Marion, Ind.

These young people forego the opportunity of earning most, if not all, of their following year's college expenses. They also assume the responsibility in most cases of raising a large percentage of the expense involved, amounting close to $2,000. Yet these young people rise to this challenge agreeably.

THE appointees represent a cross section of the college. Not all are members of the college's parent denomination, The Churches of Christ in Christian Union.

From Apalachin, N.Y., Circleville Bible College Elizabeth Auer has been selected for missionary work on the Mexican border.

Three will be traveling to the West Indies this summer. They are: Melody Grable, of Philo, a member of the Free Methodist Church; Keith Grove, of Conneautville, Pa., a member of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

Sisters Jean and Brenda Mason of Zanesville will be going separate ways this summer. Brenda has been accepted for missionary service in Japan and Jean in New Guinea. Both are members of the Free Methodist denomination.

New Play Criticized By Catholic Leader

CINCINNATI (AP) — The lead player in Leonard Bernstein's "Mass" says he is confused by Cincinnati Archbishop Paul Leibold's criticism of the production as "offensive" to Catholics.

Alan Titus, 26, who plays the young priest who dashes the sacred host and sanctified wine to the floor in the production, defended the show saying he, as a Roman Catholic, himself, found nothing offensive in it.

Fair Skies Favor Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pleasant weather favored most of the nation today, with only scattered showers and thunderstorms marring an over-all pattern of fair skies and temperatures above the seasonal normals.

Readings in the 70s and 80s were widespread Monday, except in the Great Lakes region and the Pacific Coast. The Southwest sizzled in the upper 90s.

Showers and thunderstorms wet down parts of the Atlantic Coast, the Great Lakes, the Northern Plains, the Rio Grande Valley and the Pacific Northwest.

A tornado ripped through an area of Greenville, N.C., late Monday, causing two serious injuries and extensive damage to houses and mobile homes.

A thunderstorm pounded Big Bend National Park in Texas with hailstones an inch in diameter.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 35 at Flagstaff, Ariz., to 87 at Blythe, Calif.

Dear Editor:

The Circleville High School Band would like to thank the people who worked behind the scenes to help prepare for our concert Friday night.

To Bill Hulse, who worked with the lighting system, and to the audio-visual department who set up our microphone system, we express our sincere gratitude.

We would also like to apologize to Tom Caruso (guitar player with the stage band) for omitting his name in the program.

Finally we would like to express our "symphonic appreciation" to the public for supporting us by attending the concert and smorgasboard.

Security Increased At Frog-Jump Contest

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP) — Security will be increased for this week's International Jumping Frog Jubilee—expected to draw 75,000 persons and 3,000 frogs—but law officers are reluctant to say by how much.

A year ago the jubilee was marred by property damage and nearly 70 arrests as some persons crowded into this community of 3,000, made immortal by Mark Twain in "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

"We are beefed up considerably from last year," Sheriff Russell Leach said.
